Programme for crafts and production

The programme for crafts and production is intended for those who wish to work with different crafts or with the making of products of different kinds.

This programme is intended for those who like to work in a practical way in creating a product.

This is what you learn on the programme

You will work on tasks within craftsmanship (handicrafts) and production.

You obtain knowledge about how craftsmanship and production take place and how you can use machinery and tools. This may involve the design and making of craft items, assembly and welding.

You will also learn how to look after and use machinery and tools in a safe way.

You will also learn about different production methods and you acquire knowledge of different materials used within handicraft and production.

On the programme you practise working with others and dealing with customers in a way that puts the accent on good service.

Work environment (health & safety) issues are an important part of the programme to ensure that you do not suffer workplace injuries in future and to ensure that you have good health in the workplace.

This is how the programme is organised

The national programmes include subjects that everyone shall study. These are designated as general subjects for special needs upper secondary school students.

The subjects are:

- English
- Aesthetic activities
- History
- Physical education and health
- Mathematics
- Nature studies
- Religious studies
- Social studies (civics)
- Swedish or Swedish as a second language.

Standard programme subjects

The programme has vocational subjects or programme-specific subjects which are called standard programme subjects. All students on the programme shall study the following subjects:

- Form and design
- Crafts and production
- Materials and tools.

Programme specialisation

You will also study several subjects that provide you with more knowledge within the area you have chosen. These subjects are designated programme specialisation.

Since different schools can offer different subjects as special programmes, you are free to contact the school you wish to apply to and ask which programme specialisation is available at the school.

You can also read more about the programme specialisation at the website www.skolverket.se under the flap Preschools and Schools.

Individual choice

You also make an individual choice. You may yourself choose certain subjects which do not belong to the programme but that all students at the school can study.

Subject syllabus

For each subject in the special needs upper secondary school, there is a subject syllabus with credit-yielding courses.

If you succeed in this, the Principal (School Director) may determine that you can study courses or subjects available at the upper secondary school level. In this way you will be further challenged in your studies.

Grades

You receive a grade when the course is completed. The teacher will assess your knowledge and compare it with the requirements or standards set for the grading scale A, C and E.

Apl (Work-based learning)

You practise and apply the knowledge you acquire on the programme at a workplace.

This is called Workplace-based learning (Apl).

Work experience project

To demonstrate that you are well prepared for the working tasks you have learned, you carry out a special needs upper secondary school work experience project (work placement).

Since the work placement shall demonstrate the entirety of your educational attainment, this will be carried out at the end of your education.

Individual study programme

You will have an individual study programme or syllabus. This specifies which subjects and courses you are studying during your upper secondary period of study.

All decisions on what you will study shall be available in the individual study programme.

Special needs upper secondary school student certificate

When you leave the special needs upper secondary school after four years, you obtain a student certificate which shows which knowledge and experiences you have on completing your education there.

The student certificate shows how many points you have studied for during your four years at Upper Secondary School.

If you have achieved passes in courses that together amount to 2,500 points then you have a complete special needs upper secondary school education.

This is how you work on the programme

On the programme you work practically and theoretically on different tasks.

You will practise working with others. You will also practise working independently and taking responsibility.

On the programme you will practise discussing, thinking about and saying what you think.

You will also practise describing how you carry out your work assignments.
